Name: Chorlton Mill

Grade: II Date Assigned: 14/05/1985 Amended: Revoked:

Legal Description

Former mill, now disused and ground floor converted to agricultural use. Re-built 1848 (date inscribed on keystone over first floor entrance on west side), presumably on the site of an earlier mill. Roughly coursed sandstone blocks, slate mansard roof with flat top. Tower, square on plan, with lower 2-storeyed gabled projection to south and later purple brick lean-to above stream to east. 3 storeys with loft lit by half-dormers (gabled on south and east sides); chamfered mullion windows on north, 2 with 2 lights on first floor and one with 3 lights to ground; opening for chute beneath right-hand first floor mullion; entrance under wide segmental arch on west with access to first floor above; ashlar floor band all round beneath loft. Interior: no machinery survives except wheel for hoist in loft; heavy beams to ground and first floor ceilings supported on plain stone corbels. Immediately to the north of the brick lean-to is a small twin-arched bridge, part brick/part stone. The late C19 mill house, latterly known as Rose Cottage, which abuts the mill on the west, is not of special interest, and is not included. The mill is in poor state of repair due to neglect at the time of re-survey (1984).

Legal Description

Parish church. Medieval origins, entirely reconstructed in 1826-7 by James Trubshaw Junior. Sandstone ashlar (with especially large blocks below the plinth to nave and chancel), slate roof. Classical style; nave and chancel in one, west tower. Tower: the basic fabric is probably medieval (see the roll-moulded plinth and the tool marks on the masonry), but the windows, along with the buttresses, parapet with cornice and corner obelisks, are all of 1827; round-headed west window with raised keystone and imposts has cast-iron Y-tracery with transoms; above is a narrow rectangular slit (?medieval) and to the belfry stage 4 openings with plain Y-tracery and wooden louvres. Nave and chancel in one. The west wall on the south side (which protrudes slightly from the tower) appears to be medieval, but all the rest is Trubshaw's work; 5 bays, round-headed windows with tracery as in the west window, in the second bay from the west (south side) a plain pedimented doorway; the East window is different - a blocked tripartite opening with lunette above; moulded eaves cornice with obelisks at the corners and a small cross on a globular base to the east gable. Interior: round tower arch (1827) filled by organ. Good C17 pulpit with blank arches and rosettes above; some C17 woodwork is also incorporated in a prayer desk on the north side of the early C19 altar rails; tub-shaped font (C12?) on a late C19 base; all the other fittings are of this latter or more recent date. Monuments: brass tablets on the north wall to Francis Carlose (died 1722) and Elizabeth Lander (died 1764). BOE, p.96.

Name: Former Cock Inn

Grade: II

Date Assigned: 26/11/2002

Amended: 17/06/2015

Revoked:

Legal Description

House. Late C17, extended to rear in early/mid C18 and extended and remodelled as inn in late C19. Timber frame and coursed sandstone; clad in late C19 stretcher bond to rear and mock timber frame to front; brick to early C18 rear wing. Gabled plain tile roofs and brick stacks. 3-unit plan with C19 extensions to each end and C18 rear wing. 2 storeys; 5-window front with timber casements and central doorway to road.

Interior: exposed timber frame with jowled wall posts, wall framing and queen-post roof structure with trenched purlins. The first floor has chamfered beams, plain joists and a very fine chimney-piece with a cyma-moulded mantle and plain chamfered surround to the fireplace. The later chimney-piece below, which is probably early 18th century, has a keyed segmental arch over the fireplace, the ground floor also having exposed chamfered beams and a stone end wall with a chamfered pointed-arched doorway.

Curatorial Notes

Minor Amendment (17-June-2015): Amended address to Former Cock Inn, A51 (List Entry 1096033) from Former Cock Inn, Stone Road, and the parish in the location details of the description has been changed from Whitmore to Chapel and Hill Chorlton.

Name: Green Farmhouse

Grade: II Date Assigned: 14/05/1985 Amended: Revoked:

Legal Description

Farmhouse. Medieval origins (C15?), extensively re-modelled c.1600, altered and re-faced in early C19. Yellowish-brown brick, plain tile roof with axial ridge stack to left of centre and end stack to right. Probably originally an open hall of 2 or 3 bays, a first floor and stack were inserted c.1600; simultaneously, or a little later, a single-bay addition was made to the right-hand end. In early C19 the eaves were raised and the whole re-faced in brick. 2 storeys, dentilled eaves cornice; 3 windows, 3-light late C19 casements with plastered lintels; entrance through late C19 gabled porch between second and third windows from left. Mid-C19 lean-to additions to left and to rear. Interior: cross-wall in line with entrance porch has exposed square panelling (wattle and daub infill plastered over); large fireplaces on either side of the inserted stack; moulded spine and cross-beams to the 2 principal (earlier) ground floor rooms. Upstairs (directly above the timber framed cross-wall) is what appears to be the remains of a cruck blade (concealed by wallpaper at the time of re-survey (1984)).
