Description and Sources

Description

Hillfort: Contour hillfort. Defences consisted of a bank and ditch, with a counterscarp bank in places. <1>

Univallate hillfort on a prominent sandstone outcrop. Earth and stone rampart up to 15 metres wide, counterscarp on the north side where the slope lessens. Two original entrances in the east and west sides (the latter pronouncedly inturned). Water supply from strong spring flowing from within the eastern rampart. <2>

Multiple defensive phases:

Phase 1: A timber laced rampart with ditch and counterscarp. Not precisely dated by pottery suggests Early Iron Age.

Phase 2: Box rampart widened to take superimposed glacis bank (immediately following Phase 1).

Phase 3: Period of neglect and rampart collapse.

Phase 4: Hurried reconstruction with massive ramparts built and ditches recut. On the south side gaps in the Phase 2 ramparts were blocked with stone rubble.

Subsequent disuse. <3>

Artefact: One pottery rim sherd from the site, previously believed to be Prehistoric but now identified as early medieval. Possibly evidence for reuse of the site? <13>

More correctly a multivallate hillfort. <14>

Thought to be the site on which Richard Nevil, Earl of Salisbury was camped prior to the Battle of Blore Heath. (LH, 06-Sept-2007) <15>

Irregular contour fort enclosing 9 acres. Single main rampart with double and triple banks and ditches. Inturned entrance on west side with small entrance on the north east, both have been disfigured with modern cart tracks. Has a spring. Now covered with trees and bracken. Dated by Thomas 2nd, 1st century BC. (RH, 24-June-2016) <15>

"A trench was cut across the most westerly point of the upper rampart. Several stages of reconstruction were seen, but not dating evidence obtained." (RH, 24-June-2016) <16>

Description

Moated Site: A rectangular area surrounded by a 9 metre wide wet moat. Presumably this was the site of the Burnell's (or Bucknell's?) house until a new timber-framed house (Lea Head Manor) was built in 1671 to the south-east. <1>

The moated site is situated in a shallow valley with a grass and tree covered platform circa 41 metres by 23 metres. The moat is 9 to 12 metres wide. Current access across the moat is by a stone revetted causeway across the south-east arm. Traces of a wooden structure have been observed on the north-west arm.

Description and Sources

Description

Round Barrow: Round mound with no visible ditch. Bowl barrow. <1>

In a prominent position on the edge of a steep escarpment. Despite negative evidence of excavation this mound appears to be a bowl barrow. <2>

Prior to 1812 those places that resembled barrows were dug in to. Nothing like sepulchral remains were found. <3> <5>

A small conical mound excavated down to the undisturbed Trias pubble bed. No sign of a burial. <4>

There is a suggestion that this mound was a sighting point for outposts on guard. (SB, 14-Feb-2006) <7>

Both mounds (00477 + 01435) occupy a prominent position in the Camphill range, and both have a superficial apperence of being a tumli. It is assumed that the references given here do in fact refer to these mounds. In which case the suggestion is that there are not in fact tumuli since no trace of burials have been found. Present condition: plantation (dense). D c? 15yards. Height 4'. Large hole in centre 3' 6" deep D. 3p. (RH 27-June-2016) <8>

The remains of a possible burial mound, widely regarded as being a natural feature, although this has not been proven.

Monument Types and Dates

NON ANTIQUITY (Unknown date)

Evidence	ENHANCED NATURAL FEATURE

Description and Sources

Description

Non Antiquity: One of a number of natural conical hills in the area. <1>

Allegedly a barrow, but excavated circa 1810 and no finds were made. <2>

A mound of circular form; Diameter 130 ft., height 20 ft. <3> <9>

King's Bank has a barrow on its apex. <4> <9>

A large bowl barrow, hollow in the centre, surmounting a very prominent knoll. <5>

A natural conical shaped hill rising quite sharply from the surrounding area. There is only a slight break of slope on top, but not enough to conclusively suggest a tumulus. This was called 'Coplow' by antiquarian Robert Plot. <6> <7> <9>

An amorphous mound situated on a hilltop and with no distinct edges. A pit probably indicates the site of an excavation in 1810. The site may well be natural, but the possibility of it being a barrow cannot be totally ruled out. <8>

Possible Tumulus? Marked on the Ordnance Survey 6" (Provisional Edition) as a tumulus. The site is a natural conical shaped hill rising quite sharply from the surrounding area. There is only a slight break of slope on the top - the alleged position of the tumulus - but not enough to conclusively suggest a tumulus. This was called 'Coplow' by Robert Plot, who thought it was the burial place of a ??? (last word illegible on record card). (RH, 23-June-2016) <9>

A few yards to the south of King's Bank mound (PRN 00478) is another similar hillock topped by a barrow. <1>

A slight build up at the meeting point of two ridges, similar to numerous other sandstone outcrops in the locality. If this feature as ever a barrow it is now too mutilated to be recognizable as such. Under afforestation. <2>

00481 - MST481	Linear Feature / Causeway, Near Berth Hill	Monument

The remains of a linear feature or causeway of unknown date, which was originally identified in the 19th century. The causeway was identifiable on aerial photography from the 1950s, and was still visible as a slightly raised ridge in places at this time. Possibly associated with Berth Hill hillfort and the near-by Iron Age farmstead.

Description and Sources

Description

Causeway: A stony causeway leading north-east to south-west across the flood plain of the River Tern. The causeway was visible as a slight ridge up to 10 metres wide and 0.2 metres high in the field immediately to the north of the river. It is identifiable elsewhere as a stony strip in arable land. The causeway disappears in boggy ground to the south of the river. To the north it is visible as far as the Crewe to Nantwich road. <1>

In circa 1813 an 'ancient paved road' leading across the moss was dug up during plantation. <2>

A linear feature is visible on an RAF aerial photograph from 1953. (SB, 08-Jun-2006) <3>

Description and Sources

Description

Farmstead: A sub-rectangular enclosure connected with Berth Hill (PRN 00023) by a ditched trackway (PRN 00481). The enclosure is circa 71 metres long and has a v-shaped ditch over 2 metres wide and up to 1 metre deep. It has been intersected by a road running east-west through it. The road, on a sand embankment, was circa 3 metres wide, its sides battened with timber and its surface probably strengthened by wattle matting. Where the track crossed the ditch on the eastern side of the enclosure there was a wooden gateway and on the western side a clavicula entrance. An arrangement of outer ditches were probably for drainage purposes. There were shallow ditches at each side of the track. All of the ditches were silted up by the 17th century. Although no firm dating evidence has been recovered from the site it is considered likely to be a native farmstead of Iron Age date. <1> <2> <3>

A second possible enclosure and further linear feature have also been identified immediately to the north of the first enclosure. (SB, 08-Nov-2012). <4>

Cropmark photographed. A small rectangular mark with rounded corners in a field to the south of the Stone to Nantwich (A51) road. Several other marks shown on the photograph. "Work was down in 1963...The causewayed entrances were battened with wood and flanked by wood structure. The enclosure is presumably related to Berth Hill." (RH, 23-June-2016) <5>

Description

Mound: A round mound of uncertain date. Excavated in the early 19th century, although no finds were made. <1>

Both mounds (00477 + 01435) occupy a prominent position in the Camphill range, and both have a superficial appearance of being a tumuli. It is assumed that the references given here do in fact refer to these mounds. In which case the suggestion is that there are not in fact tumuli since no trace of burials have been found. Present condition: plantation (dense). D c? 15yards. Height 4'. Large hole in centre 3' 6" deep D. 3p. (RH, 27-June-2016) <2> <3>

Description

NUMEROUS DITCHES ON THE SUMMIT OF CAMP HILL, SOME WITH TRACKWAY FROM BERTH HILL AND OTHER EARTHWORKS HAVE BEEN INTERPRETED AS EVIDENCE OF A BRONZE AGE SETTLEMENT. OS FAILED TO FIND THE ABOVE FEATURES IN 1958 AND AGAIN IN 1974. HOWEVER, IN 1975 CHALLIS AND HARDING LISTED THE SITE AS AN EXTENSIVE BRONZE AGE SETTLEMENT. <1>

THE SITE IS HEAVILY WOODED. A SITE VISIT BY RAM IN 1981 AND AGAIN IN 1983 FAILED TO LOCATE THIS IMPROBABLE ANTIQUITY. <not sourced>

Thought to be the site at which James Lord Audley was camped prior to the Battle of Blore Heath. (LH, 06-Sept-2007) <2>

Description and Sources

Description

Formal Garden / Landscape Park: A formal garden area laid out around Lea Head Manor. The extent of the landscaped area is not plotted on the 1st or 2nd Edition Ordnance Survey mapping. <1> <2>

The listed manor house is of late 17th century date and there are also a set of listed gate piers at the entrance to the landscaped area of similar (late 17th or early 18th century) date, perhaps providing a relative date for the establishment of the garden/parkland. (SB, 11-May-2017) <3>

Description and Sources

Description

An early 17th century detached black and white cottage with adjoining sandstone barn (PRN 11855). The cottage is of brick and sandstone construction with part-timbered elevations and is believed to date back to 1630. The cottage originally formed part of the Maer Estate and had been under the ownership of the Wainwright family from 1940 to the present day. The property was renovated in 1984, but retains original oak beams, wall timbers, floors and a fine oak staircase. The dining room has an open fireplace with brick inset tiled heather and oak and sandstone surround, an original quarry tile floor and exposed beams and wall timbers. The sitting room also has exposed wall and ceiling beams and a quarry tiled floor and the bedrooms of the upper floor also have exposed timber framing. Formal gardens lie to the south of the house and there is also a productive, part wall kitchen garden. (SB, 17-Apr-2014) <1>

06983 - MST7079	Gate Piers to Lea Head Manor, Aston Lane, Maer	Monument

A set of listed, sandstone ashlar gate piers of probable late 17th or early 18th century date, located at the entrance to Lead Head Manor. The piers are surmounted by pineapple finials and have late 19th or early 20th century wrought iron gates. The gate piers are not in their original position (having formerly stood in front of the house. They are comparable in style to the gate piers at Whitmore Hall and if these are indeed late 17th century, as claimed, they are early examples of the representation of pineapples, first grown in this country in the 1660s.

Description

Maer Pool, originally a natural mere, is the main feature of Maer Hall Park. The level of the water in the pool was raised in the early 19th century at the suggestion of landscape architect John Webb. A dam and sluice were constructed which increased the area of water from six hectares to 9 hectares. Silting has caused the area of the pool to shrink back to 6 hectares, which has resulted in a once associated boathouse (PRN11865) now being separated from it. (SB, 11-Oct-2010) <1>

Description

The Stoke, Silverdale and Market Drayton Branch of the North Staffordshire Railway, the route of which is plotted on the 1st Edition Ordnance Survey maps. (SB, 20-Apr-2012) <1>

Construction work on the North Staffordshire Railway began in September 1846. (SB, 20-Apr-2012) <2>

The Silverdale and Newcastle Railway was leased to the North Staffordshire Railway by Ralph Sneyd on 31 August 1860 under a 999 year lease. The line to Knutton Junction opened to goods traffic in September 1952 and to passengers in May 1863 while the passenger and goods section from Silverdale to Market Drayton was opened in February 1870. (SB, 20-Apr-2012) <3>

The course of the railway survives in places, however in the Newcastle area has been lost to redevelopment. (SB, 20-Apr-2012) <4> <5>

Description and Sources

Description

The remains of a low dry-stone wall identified during an archaeological evaluation and watching brief in the centre of Maer in 2012. The remains of the wall may have been associated with a former walled garden to the west.

Also identified in this area was a linear cut feature infilled with redeposited sandy soils. The feature ran parallel to the existing walled garden to the west. It is considered that the feature may have been associated with the construction of the walled garden in the early to mid 19th century. Alternatively it may have been associated with more recent soil improvements in the thin strip of land to the east of the walled garden, perhaps contemporary with the construction of the modern 'Garden House'. A telephone kiosk of the type designed by Sir Giles Gilbert Scott in 1935. The kiosk is of red-painted cast iron with vertical glazing panels. It was originally situated on the road junction adjacent to the south-east grounds corner of the grounds of Maer Hall, but was moved to its current location on Haddon Lane some time after 1960. It was assessed for Listing in January 2017 however it was concluded that, given the loss of its original context due to relocation, it did not meet the criteria for designation.

Description and Sources

Description

A telephone kiosk at Maer, which was originally situated at the road junction adjacent to the south-east grounds corner of the grounds of Maer Hall and 25 metres north of the Old Post Office. The kiosk was moved 128 metres to the north-east to its current position on Haddon Lane some time after 1960.

The K6 type kiosk is of a standardised design, made of cast iron, painted red overall with long horizontal glazing in door and sides and with the crowns situated on the top panels being applied not perforated. There are rectangular white display signs reading 'TELEPHONE' beneath the shallow curved roof. It has modern telecommunications equipment inside.

In its current position the telephone kiosk has a visual relationship with the Old Vicarage (listed at Grade II) 13 metres to the north, and an outbuilding (listed at Grade II) standing within the grounds of Maer Hall (a Grade II Registered Park and Garden) 51 metres to the west.

The telephone kiosk was proposed for listed in December 2016. (SB, 13-Dec-2016) <1>

In December 2016 / January 2017 Historic England assessed the telephone kiosk for statutory listing, prompted by its proposed removal by BT. The assessment identified that the telephone kiosk was originally situated at the road junction adjacent to the south-east corner of the grounds of Maer Hall and 25 metres north of the Old Post Office (not listed). It was moved 128 metres north-east, to its current position on Haddon Lane sometime after 1960. Although in its new location it has a strong visual relationship with two listed buildings, it has lost its original context, including its proximity to the former post office. One of the principal criteria when considering a telephone kiosk for listing is its spatial context and there are a significant number of listed kiosks which survive in their original position. After examining all the records and other relevant information, and having carefully considered the architectural and historic interest of the kiosk it has been determined that it did not meet the criteria for listing. The principal reason given is the loss of this kiosk's former context which means that, despite its continued association with Maer, it does not meet the high level of special interest required when considering this type of standardised structure for listing.
