Legal Description

Farmhouse, now house. Probably c.1600 with later alterations. Timber framed on sandstone plinth with painted brick infill, mid-to-late C19 fishscale tiled roof. 2 storeys and gable-lit attic; 3 framed bays. Framing: 3 rectangular panels from cill to wall plate, short tension braces, but to the left of the doorway a change in the framing suggests that the chimney may be a later insertion. Three 3-light late C20 leaded casements to first floor and 3 to ground, 2 to left of late C19 door with gabled hood and one to right; ridge stack re-built in mid-C19 purplish-brown brick, immediately to right of doorway. Interior: chamfered spine beam and heavy joists in main ground floor room to left of doorway, exposed timber frame; inglenook fireplace, late C17 oak staircase with curved splay balusters behind stack. Queen-strut roof with V-struts from the collar.

Legal Description

Boathouse. Probably mid-to-late C19. Possibly by T.H. Mawson, who laid out the gardens of Maer Hall (q.v.) for F.J. Harrison in late C19. Rock-faced sandstone ashlar. Causeway about 20m. in length running from balustrade and turning to left at north-west end, under which is the boathouse itself. Causeway has one round-headed arch on both sides, with steps over top and 2 round arches and short flight of steps on south. Boathouse with narrow round arches to north-west and south and wide round-arched boat entrance to north; flat roof above with low parapet has access from causeway. The boathouse and causeway were formerly in the lake itself, but this has now receded to the north-west, which means that boats now have to be pulled for a short distance across the lawn.

Legal Description

Parish church. Partly late C12/early C13 fabric, with C14 additions, almost entirely re-built in C17 and thoroughly restored by Lewis and Son of Newcastle under Lyme c.1870. Coursed sandstone to earlier parts, ashlar to C19 work; late C19 plain tiled roofs with fishscale bands and ornamental cresting. Nave and chancel in one, west tower, continuous north aisle, south porch, organ chamber and vestry. Tower: probably mid-to-late C17 (see date 1670 on south belfry window) in Gothic Survival style. 2 stages on double-chamfered plinth; paired trefoil-headed openings under triangular and heart-shaped lights to belfry on north, south and west; west window in same style; below the belfry on south a blocked, chamfered rectangular opening; plain embattled parapet and corner pinnacles; wide stepped buttress at north-east angle. Nave: in 2 bays with chancel of one bay; fenestration all late C19; cusped 3-light windows under square heads to east of porch and a 4-light mullioned and transomed window, also with cusped lights to west; East window of 3 cusped lights with elongated quatrefoils above. Gabled south porch: C17 with rather roughly-shaped round-head outer arch and lancet opening above; the south door itself is transitional (c.1200), one order of shafts with an arch of one step and one slight chamfer, but most of the stonework has been replaced (probably c.1870). North aisle, organ chamber and vestry all under continuous catslide roof apparently late C19 (plain mullioned windows on north side), but the C17 window of 2 round arches under a square head in the west wall (which seems to be in situ) shows that the aisle must actually be a re-building (see also datestone 16144/1878 above window). Interior: tall, narrow pointed tower arch; north nave arcade of 2 pointed bays with a central octagonal pier probably C14; continuous arch-braced roof to nave and chancel in 5.5 bays (late C19); all the fittings and furnishings are also of late C19 or later date except the late C12 font, a round basin with circular moulded pedestal on chamfered octagonal plinth; C20 stained glass in north aisle by Shrigley and Hunt. Monument: in arched recess on north side of chancel; Sir John Bowyer (died 1604) and his wife, Catherine, chest tomb with 2 recumbent effigies and armorial shields to sides, moulded inscription band. BOE, pp.200-1.

Gate piers. Probably late C17/early C18. Rusticated sandstone ashlar. Square in section. Moulded capping (and probably plinth under gravel of drive) with half domes above, surmounted by pineapple finials. 2 late C19/early C20 wrought iron gates, not included. The gate piers are not in their original position and formerly stood in front of the house; the domes and finials have been repaired with cement and the right-hand pier is twisted round and slightly damaged at time of re-survey (1984). Comparable in style to the gate piers at Whitmore Hall, Whitmore CP (q.v.). If these are indeed late C17, as claimed, they are early examples of the representation of pineapples, first grown in this country in the 1660s.

Curatorial Notes

Formerly listed as Gate piers at Lea Head.

House. Late C17, date (B/16 W S 71) carved over door, later additions and alterations, mostly of 1920s. Timber framed with plastered brick infill on chamfered dressed sandstone plinth, plain tiled roof with decorated bargeboards and finials. Originally roughly 'L'-shaped with a range at right angles to rear on left; C20 additions also behind to right. 2 storeys and attic; cellars. Framing: close-studding with cross rails to each floor, continuous jetty to front, supported on carved brackets, carried around left-hand gable end (the right-hand one is now brick clad but was also formerly jettied); short tension end braces. 4-window front; slightly bowed leaded casements supported on carved brackets, probably mainly original but much repaired, all of 4 lights except the outer ones on ground floor which have 5; 3 gabled dormers in roof slope also with 4-light leaded casements. Carved corner brackets, scroll-decorated bargeboards and pointed finials; massive sandstone stack with moulded capping and 4 round shafts to left of central doorway, now with C20 iron-studded door. Short range at range angles to rear on left also with 2 storeys and attic; rectangular panels, 4 from cill to wall plate, long straight tension braces; decorated bargeboard and pointed finial, C20 leaded casements; the C20 extensions to right are also timber framed with painted brick infill in imitation of the earlier work. Interior: contains many features of interest; late C17 staircase in short range to rear has 4 flights to attic, pierced carved splat balusters, ball-shaped finials and a dog gate; oak panelling in left-hand ground floor room with cupboards inset into the wall, flanking the chamfered stone fireplace with its richly carved wooden overmantel; C17 stained glass roundels in front window; the fireplace in the main (central) ground floor room also has a massive lintel and there is exposed square panelling in the right-hand end wall of this room; moulded and bevelled cross beams throughout ground floor with bar stops; further exposed framing and chamfered beams to first floor, several C17 doors. Double-purlin roof in 4 bays with upper and lower collars and V-struts from the upper collar (visible internally in the right-hand gable end). The house is said to have been built by William and Sarah Bucknell following the destruction of the medieval house, which probably lay on the moated site (a Scheduled Ancient Monument) approximately 150m. To the north-west, during the Civil War. A series of C17 household inventories survive, which are now in the County Record Office.

Country house and garden wall. House: mid-C17, considerably altered and extended mid-to-late C19 with the addition of wings by W. Culshaw and later J. Francis Doyle of Liverpool, although now again reduced to its original size. Mainly yellow sandstone ashlar on chamfered plinth, stone slate roofs; the only original stonework is to the cellars (red sandstone on east side), which also retain their original mullioned openings. C19 work in Jacobean style. 2 and 3 storeys over cellars. West garden front: 2 storeys with 3 shaped full dormers surmounted by globe finials above moulded eaves cornice; 1:1:1:1 bays, windows all mullioned and transomed, those to left and right dormers with stepped lights; central 2-storeyed porch with round-headed doorway and applied Doric columns, changing above to Ionic order; openwork balustrade to top carried around eaves, connecting dormers; 2 sandstone ashlar stacks behind ridge with paired rebated shafts. North front: 1:1:1 bays, again with mullioned and transomed windows and shaped gabled dormers; mid-C20 central single-storeyed porch with applied columns above. East front: 2 storeys and attic storey plus a further lit roof space; 1:1:1:1 bays, also with mullioned and transomed windows but with 3 plain gables to attic storey, incorporating upper gable lights. Late C19 flat-roofed porch (probably owing its present appearance to the reduction of the Victorian work) against south side with a coped stone garden wall attached to south. Interior: not inspected, but said to have been considerably altered in 1960s when many of the Victorian fittings were removed. The home of F.J. Harrison, the Liverpool ship owner, in late C19, and it was for him that Doyle extended the hall. BOE, p.201.

Legal Description

Stable block and coachman's house, now part stables, part garages. Probably mid to late C19. Orange-red brick; slate roofs, hipped to east projection and with raised verges and ball finial to gable of west projection. Central east-west range with long projection to north at west end and short projection, also to north, at east. 2 levels; blind full-height round-arched recess to east projection and 3 similar round-arched recesses to upper level of central range, all (except central recess of central portion, which has a pitching eye (now glazed)) with mid-C19 latticed casements. On ground level of central range, 3 blocked wide entrances (probably former carriage entrances), with C20 glazed garage doors inserted. West projection with 3 hatches on upper level and 3 latticed casements and 2 stable doors to ground. Interior: of west projection retains original stables. Against the brick wall on north side of courtyard (not included) is a mounting block. The inscription "HD/1875" on downpipe to the rear of the stable block (by the gatehouse (q.v.)) suggests that it was built for the Davenport family, owners of Maer Hall (q.v.) in mid-C19.

Legal Description

Farmhouse, now house. Probably late C16/early C17 with considerable later additions and alterations. Timber framed with plastered brick infill on high sandstone plinth, plain tiled roof. Baffle-entry type extended and converted (see the interruption in the stonework to the plinth directly beneath the stack, suggesting the existence of a former entrance at this point). 2 storeys and gable-lit attic; apparently 2 but probably 3 structural bays. Framing: 3 square panels from cill to wall plate, short tension braces; two 3-light C20 leaded casements to each floor with one of 2 lights in position of former entrance; central ridge stack re-built in mid-C19 purplish-brown brick. The left-hand gable end is now brick clad and the right-hand one has planted framing. Long mid-to-late C19 painted brick extension at right angles to rear, with catslide roof and three C20 dormers in roof slope, may in fact incorporate some earlier work (see the sandstone plinth to the right-hand wall). Interior not inspected, but said to contain some moulded plasterwork in one of the upstairs room.
